

Human Initiation

Written By
James Chan

Into the world
Out of the blue
Spent the best years of my life
Wishing I were you
Not a lot's happened since you bought the farm
Post adolescent limbo guess I thought I'd never live long

Cause I've been wishing you'd wake
From the big dirt nap
But the shadow you cast indicates
You're never coming back
Now 30 years in
That's when I began
To see the sea change

No more secrets this year
People soul searching, running,
Hiding from their deepest fears
Now we're all left with no time to test
No time to rest
I'm not buying what they're selling me

You and me
Could take a good look at the tide
Find a good place to confide
Find out what's compelling me to take your place
Or take a good look in the mirror
Stop lagging in the human race
Make your move
Got something to prove
Find out what you're made of

But I'm not the only one, not the only one
To burn their wings on the sun
Earth mother can you heal what we've done?
Can we still be your prodigal sons?