

The Future

Written By
James Chan

The Earth keeps spinning 'round
And the sky keeps falling
Mom and Dad are dying
Can you hear the future call?
When we were kids
We lived under clear skies
Clean water was free
Our hearts were so alive

One day it goes away
And the darkness rolls in
We focus on the pain
And drift apart from our friends
The ones that didn't die
Are different people now
It's funny how things change
Am I different somehow?

If there is a God
I think we'd find it laughing
Dancing undecided
Making love with this world
Is this strange place some cosmic coincidence
And if it's the case is it the only one?

The future isn't set
It hasn't happened
If we stick together
We'll have a fighting chance
When the weather changes
I'll keep you from the cold
The future is uncertain for the young
Not for the old